

The Power of being Relationship Aware

Following on from the successful Teddy Bear project, this Bite Size training incorporates these key messages in a new program focused on enabling your school to become 'Relationship Aware'

Trauma comes in many forms and affects people to differing degrees, and the emotional trauma that children experience doesn't necessarily end when a tough time is over. Its consequences can easily last a lifetime. That is what neuroscience has been telling us for the past two decades. As educationalists, we can make a difference to individual lives.

This training uses research materials from a variety of sources including the Sutton Trust, the Parental Engagement Network (PEN) alongside materials from authors such as Suzanne Zeedyk to create a package that is powerful in content and will lead to improved understanding of how we can make a difference to the children in our care, especially during a global pandemic and beyond.

Aims of the Program:

Through using 'Transitional Objects' to become 'Relationship Aware' you can:

- Support the emotional well-being of children and families.
- Improve all transitions and build effective relationships between home, school and settings.
- Ultimately, enable children to be ready for each school day, leading to raised outcomes for children.

Developed in partnership with Derbyshire County Council and Early Years Practitioners, Alfreton Nursery School Teaching School Alliance has created 'Bite Size' training which is easily accessible within our new Covid way of working.

Bite Size Modules

Each module will begin with specific theory and pedagogy, followed by case studies from a range of educational settings and clearly defined impact. Wider reading materials, as well as resources to take away, enable you to gain the most out of each Bite Size session.

Bite Size Live Sessions will be held weekly and will incorporate a Q and A session with practitioners who have implemented the training within their school or setting.
